RE-ROUTING OF
ROUTE 2 THRU
CITY IN BOARDSupervisors Hear Plan
Proposed by Commissioner Miller

The board of supervisors adjourned this morning at 10 o'clock to reconvene this afternoon at 3 o'clock, the entire board going to the county home near Eldena for the annual inspection trip at the invitation of Willis M. Frye, custodian.

City Attorney E. E. Wingert appeared before the board yesterday and spoke with reference to the re-routing of the Black Hawk Trail entering Dixon from the east. The city attorney recommended the vacating of the county tuberculosis sanitarium property on East Second street from the city, in order that the route might come up Ravine avenue from East River street.

The Curran Grocery company of this city was awarded the contract for the furnishing of groceries for the Lee County Home at this morning's session.

Members of the board discussed at some length this morning, the advisability of liability and compensation insurance for patrolmen and members of the grading crews, the matter being referred to the road and bridge committee to submit a report at this session.

Disallow DeKalb Bills

Several bills from business and professional men of Malta, DeKalb county, were turned down by the board at their session Tuesday afternoon. The bills had been charged up to Wyoming township and Supervisor Henry Kretsch explained the conditions which brought about the presentation of the bills to Lee county for payment. A family who had lived near Paw Paw had moved to DeKalb some time ago, the Wyoming supervisor stated, and the head of the family secured employment near Malta. Later the family moved to Malta, where they were quarantined for scarlet fever. The entire family was affected by the quarantine and when this was lifted the supervisor of Malta township in DeKalb county sent all of the claims that had been contracted for medical services, fuel and groceries to this county. The board voted to disallow the bills.

The committee to whom was referred the application for a blind pension for Marcus Hanson of this city, reported favorably on the matter and the board voted to allow the sum.

Commander J. A. Snyder of the local American Legion post appeared before the board and explained the system of street decoration with uniform flags, asking that the county install six of the units on Galena avenue between Second and Third streets. The matter was referred to the soldiers and sailors committee with power to act.

Seek State Convention

The board discussed at some length the advisability of appropriating a sum to be used for clerk hire by the board of review, the matter finally being referred to the fees and salaries committee to report at this session.

Harold Woodley, secretary of the Dixon Chamber of Commerce appeared before the board and explained that the local organization had been asked to assist in securing the convention of supervisors, county clerks, probate clerks, probate judges and county judges for 1925. He explained that the Chamber of Commerce was ready and anxious to aid in any way possible to secure this convention should the members of the Lee county board decide that it was wanted here. A communication which bore the signatures of several members of the board was read, in which the plan for bidding for the 1925 state convention was outlined and urged. Chairman Andrew Nicholson appointed a special committee consisting of himself and Supervisors Harry O. Wheeler and Joseph A. Whitish of Dixon township to confer with the Chamber of Commerce and use their efforts to secure the convention.

Bloomington, Ill., June 11.—Clever work on the part of local officials resulted in the arrest yesterday of Walter F. Wagner, a deserter from the United States navy last May. A description of Wagner, whose home is in Bloomington, was sent to the local police by the navy authorities in Chicago. Yesterday afternoon they saw a man around town who answered to the description of Wagner and nabbed him. He is now in the local jail, awaiting the arrival of naval authorities.

The prohibition agents declared they were there seeking evidence of liquor violations, but the police asserted they were interested spectators of the entertainment.

C. W. Vursell, chief enforcement agent here, declared men were on duty when arrested.

Major Ridgeway recently has been leader of raids, the latest one in La-Salle County. The agents declared they were victims of a police "frame up."

MONDELL REPEATS
RALLYING CRY TO REPUBLICAN CLANStirring Plea for Majority in Congress By Chairman.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Cleveland, Ohio, June 11.—President Coolidge has justified the confidence that "inspired" his nomination for vice president at Chicago, and the greater confidence reposed in him since taking up the duties of chief executive is the "outstanding fact" in the political situation, Frank W. Mondell, declared today in his address as permanent chairman of the Republican National Convention.

Mr. Mondell added an appeal for Republican majorities in congress "in name and in principle," saying that every serious fault of recent legislation would have been avoided had the president that strength in house and senate.

The chairman assailed the democrats for their "utter lack of fixed and definite principle or policy, save that of muckracking and obstruction." Referring to the situation in the last congress, when insurgents joined with democrats to control never before had the necessity for dependable party majority and definite party responsibility been so clearly demonstrated.

Text of His Address

The text of Mr. Mondell's address follows:
Ladies and gentlemen of the convention:
We are met as the representatives of a great political party that has never failed nor faltered in its service or loyalty to the republic; that has never proposed nor advocated an unwise or unsound national policy, and it is our privilege on behalf of this party to place in nomination for the highest offices in the gift of the American people, candidates who shall measure up to the finest standard.

MEN OF BIBLE CLASS HEAR OF
OIL BUSINESSG. F. Prescott Gave Educational Talk to Christian Men.

Gasoline supply and production along with the manufacture of various lubricating oils was discussed last night by George Prescott of the Prescott Oil company of Dixon, in the monthly meeting of the Loyal Men's Bible class of the Christian church, held at the home of the minister. At present, Mr. Prescott showed, there is a considerable oversupply of gasoline in the country although a number of oil fields have passed the peak of their yield. The viscosity test for lubricants was explained and the general process of distillation of the crude oil was described. Mr. Prescott's thorough acquaintance with his subject and clear manner in setting forth chemistry involved, made it a most interesting and profitable program number, the first of a series of "Industry talks" which the class proposes to have from month to month from the members.

A. S. Derr contributed a trombone solo. Clinton Fahrney two piano numbers and Miss Margaret Cleaver two vocal solos, all of which were received with delight. The president of the class, E. M. Detwiler, announced that the July meeting of the class would be held at Lowell Park, with horse shoes, baseball and a picnic supper on the schedule. The two dozen men present offered no objection to the ice cream, strawberries and angel food cake served by the hostess and her two daughters, assisted by Mrs. A. S. Derr and Miss Lucile Stauffer.

(Telegraph Special Service.)
Springfield, Ill., June 11.—Rev. Dr. Charles Virden, who for the past 19 years had been head of the Division of Visitation of the State Department of Public Welfare, died at his home in Springfield last night, aged 85 years. He had been in poor health for some time. He was a member of the Rock River Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church and previous to his being appointed to the position in the state department of Public Welfare had held pastorates at Byron, Peconia, Yorkville, Millington, Rockton and Chicago.

FRANKS' SLAYERS WILL BE TRIED IN CHICAGO, AUG. 4thPleaded Not Guilty to Charges When Arraigned
This Morning.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, June 11.—State's Attorney Crowe today won his first skirmish for an early trial of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, confessed kidnapers and slayers of Robert Franks, when the trial was set for August 4. Both boys pleaded "not guilty" when arraigned before Judge Caverly.

Mr. Crowe demanded a speedy trial and asked that July 15 be fixed as the trial date.

Attorneys Clarence Darrow and Benjamin Bacharach of the defense objected.

Judge Caverly then fixed July 21 as a date to dispose of preliminary motions and set the trial for August 4. Counsel for the defense declared they did not believe it would be possible to be ready for trial at that time. A hint that a change of venue might be asked later was seen in Attorney Darrow's remarks in objecting to so early a date for trial when he declared that there was no man in Chicago would say that the case of the two prisoners had not been prejudiced.

Informal last night that their names were on the arraignment call for this morning, neither Leopold or Loeb manifested any concern.

"It is my birthday," Loeb remarked, "quite an event to have happen on a fellow's birthday." The boy is 19 today.

The defense in Loeb's case was assured of one character witness when Miss Lorraine Nathan, 18, sweetheart of Loeb, announced she would be willing to testify in his behalf.

The state's attorney's office has subpoenaed newspaper men who worked on the Franks' "story" to go before the grand jury to give their impressions as to the sanity of the pair.

A tribute to Leopold's ability as an ornithologist was paid by one professor who said the youth was an unusually brilliant student and a master on bird life.

DEMOCRAT OUT
FOR CONGRESS
IN THIRTEENTHWm. G. Curtis, Stockton, Made Announcement of Desire.

Stockton, Ill.—William G. Curtis, Democratic candidate for member of Congress, 13th district, announced today he has decided to make a fight for the office, instead of letting it go by default, as has been so often done in past campaigns because of the fact that the district normally has an overwhelming republican majority.

Mr. Curtis is one of the best known men in northern Illinois, and throughout the state is recognized as a leader in agricultural affairs. He has been identified with the state farmers' institute for many years and is connected with other organizations having for their purpose the bettering of conditions for the agriculturist.

Mr. Curtis is preparing to make a canvass of the entire district.

His opponent for election is William Johnson, of Freeport, who has been for several years superintendent of documents in the house of representatives at Washington.

John C. McKenzie is the present member of Congress from the 13th district.

Part of Highway at ## Erie Opened to Traffic

Erie, Ill., June 10.—Two miles and a half of cement paving on Route 3 through Erie has been opened to traffic. The stretch of newly paved highway extends from the Ralph James farm north of Erie to the company's camp at the south edge of Erie. Crossings have been cleared and work of shoring up is in progress. Curbing will be installed at the old ball grounds and at Burchell's curve where slopes might be the cause of accidents.

No cement has been poured on the south half of the strip since the first part of last week, giving the graders a chance to get ahead, and also giving the newly graded ground a chance to settle since it is extremely soft on the bottoms.

BISHOP MULDOON GAVE DIPLOMAS TO
ST. MARY'S CLASSClosing Exercises, Held at Theater Tuesday Eve, Success.

The closing exercises of St. Mary's school, conducted at the Dixon Theater last night under the direction of the Sisters of the school, were probably the most elaborate and successfully presented by the school. An audience which filled the big playhouse to capacity enjoyed the program in its entirety and warmly applauded the young people who received their diplomas from the hands of Bishop Rt. Rev. Peter J. Muldoon of Rockford. The address of the Bishop, which preceded the presentation of the diplomas, was an inspiring and patriotic effort, delivered with all the force of character and skill of oratory, for which the Bishop is famous.

To attempt to single out any one or few of the young people who took part in the excellent program would be manifestly unjust to all the others; for the entire entertainment moved with precision and finish which showed careful drilling by the instructors and patient and faithful rehearsal on the part of the pupils of the school. Each did what was expected of him and did it well. The program of the evening was:

INABILITY TO AGREE ON BIG
ISSUES SEENConvention Adjourned
Until 8 O'clock This Evening

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Convention Hall, Cleveland, O., June 11.—The republican convention at another brief session today, perfected its permanent organization, cheered President Coolidge and party regularity and then recessed until 8 o'clock tonight, when it will receive and adopt its platform.

While the session was in progress the platform committee was holding a heated meeting in a council room nearby, but when the time for receiving its report arrived, Charles D. Hilles of New York announced that it was not ready and moved for a recess until 8 p. m.

A large proportion of the delegates did not want to recess and there were loud cries of "no" when the question was put.

Chairman Mondell declared with a loud bang of the gavel that "the ayes have it" and the band took the proceedings in hand at that point and the delegates filed out.

Voice Equal Rights

Among other things in its short session the convention in adopting its rules approved a new arrangement by which women will have equal representation with men on the national committee.

Again as at yesterday's session, there was a long and loud demonstration when the rallying cry of party regularity and loyalty to Coolidge was sounded by Permanent Chairman Mondell in a short address. He got the delegates to their feet—all but the LaFollette men from Wisconsin—by asking for a republican congress that would remain republican after the election.

Secretary Hoover's statement in Washington, saying he was not a candidate for the vice presidency put still another element of uncertainty into the contest for second place on the ticket and as the convention broke up and the delegates went back to their hotels no one was prepared to say just what the final effect would be.

When it assembled for its second session today, the convention found its platform practically completed, but the vice presidential nomination as much undecided as ever.

A sub-committee of the platform committee working all night had agreed on a draft which was being put before the full membership of the platform committee at the same time the convention was assembling with the expectation of having it approved and brought before the convention for adoption.

Today's program marked the passage of the organization of the convention from the "temporary" stage to the "permanent" stage.

Platform Main Business
Temporary Chairman Burton gave way to Permanent Chairman Mondell who took over the gavel and delivered his speech. While the convention was waiting for the resolutions committee to report the platform, the permanent roll of delegates was ready for acceptance and all the other details of convention organization were being completed with the idea of getting the platform itself out of the way today if possible and leaving all of tomorrow for the nomination of president and vice president.

The vice presidential situation still was being allowed to simmer so far as the convention managers were concerned, while the managers of the star boom came in wearing overcoats for a damp and gripping breeze was blowing in from where Lake Erie, a short block away, lay under dark skies.

Some of the old wheel horses with whom time had not dealt kind in the matter of hirsute adornment, were looking as though they would like to see a fifty-fifty arrangement to the extent at least which would give them the privilege of keeping on their hats, exercised freely by the women delegates.

While the crowd was filing in slowly a band in a gallery over the stage played "Linger Awhile."

gon delegation which have been active in promoting the Lowden vice presidential boom and requested the delegation should not vote for him on any roll call.

But neither this nor any other of the preliminaries aroused much comment.

The delegates were taking it all very calmly. Ten thirty and 10:40 passed and still the galleries were far from full and only scattered sections of the convention floor were occupied. The convention officials kept conferring over final details, but they showed no indication of calling for order.

There was a plan afoot to hold a night session to nominate Coolidge, leaving tomorrow free for balloting on vice president. The leaders had not agreed upon it, but it was said that the failure to get an agreement on the vice presidential candidate had aroused a considerable sentiment for getting all other convention business out of the way tonight.

Floor Fight Foreseen
A contributing factor was the uncertainty over how much time might be taken up today by a floor fight over the platform. The LaFollette delegates were primed to make as much of a demonstration as they are permitted under the convention rules, although the had not hoped of forcing adoption of any part of their substitute platform.

Out of the Indiana delegation there also came a hint that A. J. Beveridge, rated as one of the most dramatic public speakers in the country, was preparing to take the floor to voice his opposition to some of the references to foreign relations contained in the declaration of principles as drawn up by the resolutions committee.

Most of the delegates were in their seats by five minutes to eleven when the Ohio republican glee club started up "The Star Spangled Banner." The delegates and spectators stood. There still were hundreds of empty seats in the galleries. Then the glee club which sang for Harding at Chicago, four years ago and later was at Marion for many of the front porch meetings, broke into some of the old songs of the Harding campaign.

As the singing went on Temporary Chairman Burton came down to the front of the stage at two minutes to eleven. There was a smattering of hand clapping but the chairman returned to his seat on the back platform without taking up the gavel.

Senator McKinley of Illinois, chairman of the credentials committee came up to the stage and conferred with the chairman. He had his report on the permanent roll ready for presentation.

Using the gavel made from one of the Michigan axes beneath which the republican party was born, Temporary Chairman Burton finally called for order a half hour late.

The band played "The Star Spangled Banner" and Rabbi Schulman of Beth El, New York City, pronounced the invocation praying that the guidance of the Almighty would rest upon the leadership of the nation and giving thanks for the wisdom and courage of "our beloved President."

The plan had been for Bishop Schrembs of the Catholic diocese of Cleveland to make the opening prayer. He will perform that function at some later session.

Congratulate "Uncle Joe"

The prayer was unusually long. When it was over Representative Graham, Pennsylvania, offered a resolution to send greetings to "Uncle Joe" Cannon on the occasion of his 87th birthday anniversary. It felicitated the veteran republican on "the splendid record of service rendered by him during his many years of unyielding devotion to the sturdy, fundamental principles upon which the party was founded."

At the first mention of the name of Uncle Joe, absent from a republican national convention for the first time in many years, there was a great outburst of cheering. The resolution was adopted in a vast avalanche of "ayes" and then band broke into the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" with delegates and spectators standing and singing.

Dr. Marion Leroy Burton of Michigan who will make the nominating speech joined in the singing from a seat in the gallery.

The convention then was ready to receive the report of its credentials committee, but Chairman McKinley advised there would be a delay of a few minutes while final touches were put on the report. Senator McKinley at last came forward with his report. The findings of the committee, all made public previously, were read by the secretary. Chairman Burton asked if there was a minority report and a delegate from Oklahoma moved that the credentials committee be reversed in its decision to unseat E. Mont Rely and R. H. Todd, the oldest member of the national committee, as delegates from Porto Rico.

Seeking Homes Here for Unfortunate Kids

The Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society has a representative in Dixon Thursday and Friday of this week. Guy Bates is anxious to see those who would take a child either with a view to adoption or to give a free home for a few weeks. Especially is Mr. Bates desirous of meeting those who would like boys from seven to eleven years of age. These little fellows, who are too big for babies and too small to water the chickens every time without being told, have a hard time in life when mother dies or proves inadequate to her job. The society usually has a number of these chaps who are worth anybody's time—and who will richly repay the trouble of raising. A child is a good investment against old age and Mr. Bates is here to help anyone connect up with the investment. Mr. Bates will be at the Dixon Inn between 12 and 1:30 each day.

Revivals Continue.

The revival services at the Second Baptist church (colored), which will continue all this week, are increasing in interest and attendance. It is announced, and the sermons by Evangelist A. W. Nix are of force and interest. His sermon this evening will be on "Minding Your Own Business," and his wife, gospel singer, will sing "Take Your Present to the Lord and Leave It There." The public is invited to all the meetings.

Early Mailing Urged.

On account of a recent change in closing time of the mail east in the evening, patrons of the post office should arrange to get their mail in the office as near 5 o'clock p. m. as possible in order to be assured of proper dispatch, for that arriving at a later time may not get out until the later train, and then is taken to Clinton, Ill., and from there dispatched to Chicago and points east, thereby occasioning delay.

Baby Boy is Called.

Darrel Edward Cramer died at 7:30 o'clock this morning. He was the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Cramer who reside at 920 West Ninth street. Darrel Edward was but thirteen days old when he died, being born May 29th, 1924. The funeral service will be held at the home, tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock, with burial in Oakwood cemetery.

Polo Golfers to Play Dixon Match Tomorrow

The Edgewood Country Club of Polo will send a delegation of golfers to Dixon tomorrow afternoon to play the second of a series of inter-city matches with the Dixon Country club members. Following the match play at the Country club, the visitors will be entertained at a banquet at the club house.

J. H. Unger, Former Dixon Man, is Called

Jacob H. Unger of Rockford died this morning at 9 o'clock. He was well known here, and is a brother of Mrs. Louisa Powell and Lee G. Unger of this city. For a time Jacob Unger made his home here, where he was well known and had many friends. Mrs. Powell is quite ill and will be unable to attend the funeral services.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—

Cover Oil Paintings.
Oil paintings should be dusted in the lightest and most skillful manner and should be covered always before sweeping.

Soak in Water.
Always soak in cold water these vegetables that are not fresh from the garden.

Green Vegetables.
Green vegetables will keep their color better if they are cooked uncovered.

Add Raisins Last.
Raisins or currants should be well floured and added last to the cake batter so that they will not sink to the bottom of the loaf.

Baking Cakes.
If a cake browns within 15 minutes after it has been put into the oven, the heat is too great.

Using Tapioca.
In using tapioca or cornstarch see that the starch is thoroughly swollen and cooked.

Add Salt to Milk.
In case of illness if the patient does not like plain milk, add a little lime-water or a few grains of salt.

Salt in Water.
When washing dandelion greens or spinach put salt in the second water and sand from the greens will sink to the bottom of the pan.

Paper Toweling.
Dry your lettuce in paper toweling. It is very absorbent but does not crush or bruise the leaves.

Added Cooked Rice.
Cooked rice may be added to your beef or veal loaf to its advantage.

Wilted Vegetables.
Never buy stale or wilted vegetables because they are cheaper. They are likely to be unwholesome.

Removes Stains.
A raw potato cut in half and rubbed

BY SISTER MARY.
A Daily Menu for the Stout and Thin.

LOSE WEIGHT.

Three large unsweetened stewed prunes, 4 tablespoons vegetable hash on toast with 1 poached egg, ½ head lettuce with sliced radishes and onions and pepper, 1 cup clear soup, ½ broiled live lobster, 1 tomato sliced with ¼ medium sized cucumber on 2 ounces lettuce with 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 2 tablespoons rhubarb baked with 6 raisins, 2 crisp pieces gluten toast, 3 bread sticks, 2 thin slices gluten bread, 1 pint skimmed milk, 1 tablespoon butter for lobster.

Total calories, 1179. Protein, 55.3; fat, 28.6; carbohydrate, 54.0. Iron, .0185 gram.

If you love lobster you will be glad to know that you can eat it freely if it's just boiled or broiled. The average "chicken" lobster weighs around 1½ pounds before it is cooked and as the shell is the heaviest part of it you can eat a whole one and not use more than 150 calories. However, each tablespoon of melted butter adds 100 calories of fat, so beware of any sauce. But lobster à la Newburg and deviled lobster and all the fancy lobster have no iron content, as all meats and most other fish have, so you must make up the deficiency in other foods.

The vegetable hash as calculated contained carrots, asparagus, string beans, a bit of onion and just enough potato to hold the whole together.

GAIN WEIGHT.
Six large sweetened stewed prunes, 1 cup boiled rice with 1 tablespoon sugar and ¼ cup cream, ½ cup creamed smoked halibut, 2 slices graham toast, 4 tablespoons vegetable hash on buttered toast with ½ cup cream sauce poured over, ½ head lettuce with sliced radishes and onions and pepper with 2 tablespoons French dressing, 1 cup clear soup, ½ broiled live lobster, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 4 tablespoons potatoes au gratin, 1 tomato sliced with ¼ cucumber on 2 ounces lettuce with 2 tablespoons oil mayonnaise, 4 tablespoons rhubarb baked with 12 raisins, 1 cottage pudding with 2 tablespoons strawberry sauce, 3 bread sticks, 2 hard rolls, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons rhubarb marmalade, 1 pint whole milk.

The rhubarb and raisin combination baked in a casserole is very likeable. Skin the rhubarb and cut in inch lengths. Put a layer in the casserole, sprinkle over seeded raisins and cover with a layer of rhubarb. Don't add any water. Put the cover on the casserole and bake in a moderate oven. When half done sprinkle with sugar. If you used four cups of rhubarb and ½ cup raisins you will need about 1¼ cups sugar, more if you like it very sweet. (Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

W. R. C. Held Most Interesting Meeting

The Woman's Relief Corps, Auxiliary to G. A. R., held their regular meeting Monday evening at G. A. R. Hall, with a good attendance of members and several comrades present. Included in the regular business of the order was initiation of candidates, also balloting on applications, and reading of applications for membership.

The president, Mrs. Brookner, urged all members to try to attend the Flag Day services of the Elks Saturday, June 14, the members of the Corps to meet and march with the Elks to the park, she also spoke of Comrade Cooper, whose funeral services, at Grand Detour last Sunday, were in charge of the Woman's Relief Corps, and many members were present.

Mrs. Lettice, of Michigan, a sister of Mrs. Anderson, was a visitor at the meeting and in response to the president gave some very interesting remarks and expressed her pleasure in being present.

As Comrade Shelhamer's birthday is in the very near future, a short program was held in his honor, Miss Florabelle Cheney sang, and Miss Lorraine Pettit gave two readings, both ladies graciously responded to an encore, and the numbers were very much enjoyed by all. Mrs. Brookner then presented Comrade Shelhamer with a token of remembrance, but charged him to be sure and not open the package until the day of his birthday.

Delegates and members are now planning for the state convention to be held this month, and quite a number are expecting to go.

At the close of the meeting delicious refreshments were served and all enjoyed a social hour, with congratulations and good wishes for happy returns of the day for Comrade Shelhamer.

Evening Meeting South Side Club

About 170 members and friends of the South Dixon Community club enjoyed a pleasant evening Wednesday, at Gottle's Hall.

The hall was artistically decorated in red and white streamers and many beautiful bouquets of white flowers arranged on the stage completed the decorations and made a very pretty setting where the men and boys entertained with a program. That this program was thoroughly enjoyed and a grand success was proven by the hearty applause throughout the evening.

One feature brought out so cleverly in their program by the men was the brotherly love shown one to the other in these community gatherings. All the numbers on the program were equally well enjoyed.

Mrs. Lauren Henry and Mrs. Joe Sander, chairman of the committees and their able assistants in charge of this successful affair deserve much credit for their untiring efforts.

The ladies of the club are very grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Gottle for the use of the hall and extend to them a vote of thanks.

After the program refreshments of ice cream and cake were served, the sons of club members acting as waiters, during which time the South Dixon orchestra furnished music.

At a late hour all departed for their homes, having spent a most delightful evening and one to be long remembered.

THE MARVELS OF 1840.

Back in 1840 a book called "The Cabinet of Curiosities" was published in New York. It had a big sale for those times, because the author realized that every generation thinks it is living in the greatest period of history.

Let us consider one of the marvels of 1840 and compare it with the marvels of 1924. We quote from the old book:

"The world no longer resembles the world of Columbus. On those unknown seas—above which was seen to rise a black hand, the hand of Satan, which seized ships in the night and dragged them to the bottom of the abyss—packets perform regular voyages for the conveyance of letters and passengers.

"Instead of those rude, filthy, infectious, damp ships in which you had nothing but salt provisions to live upon, and were devoured by scurvy, elegant vessels offer to passengers cabins wainscotted with mahogany, provided with carpets, adorned with mirrors, flowers, libraries, musical instruments and all the delicacies of good cheer.

"As for tempests, we laugh at them! Distances have disappeared! Steamboats no longer care for contrary winds on the ocean, or for opposing currents in rivers; they are floating palaces of two or even three stories, from whose galleries the traveler admires the most magnificent scenery. The genius of man is truly great for his petty habitation."

The travelers of 1840 thought they experienced the final word in luxury and progress when they had safe ships with mirrors on the walls, flowers aboard, and genuine carpets on the floor.

We wonder what those same travelers would say if they could come back to life and journey on a modern ocean liner with its electric lights, indoor swimming pool and radio music from afar.

Or if they could travel in one of those airplanes that are making the round-the-world flight.

Alas, it is a blow to vanity, but our ocean liners and flying machines may seem as pathetically crude to people 84 years from now as the passenger packets of 84 years ago seem to us.

The only consolation is that the 1840 traveler got as much "kick" out of his generations wonders as we get out of ours on future generations will get from theirs.

"SUPERIORITY."

Prof. Herbert A. Miller of Oberlin college tells an audience: "The immigration bill is the result of that consciousness of superiority which has such a lot of pseudo-scientific support, but which is the most hateful of all attitudes of mind that results in a spirit of domination."

May be so. Efforts to limit immigration do seem to have their origin in a feeling of national superiority and a desire to keep the national stock superior, instead of letting it suffer deterioration from a big mixture of lower-grade stock. It is this assumption of our superiority that makes Japanese veterans talk war.

But is a feeling of "superiority" necessarily "hateful"? May it not be calm recognition of an obvious fact, without any particular egotism or any animus against other races? And may it not indicate a natural desire to continue as we are, maintaining our own standards instead of yielding to standards which our judgement regards as lower? And because lower can outrun us in economic competition?

Humility is a Christian virtue, especially in the individual. But too much humility on the part of a nation might result in the loss of the more stubborn virtues on which national integrity and effectiveness depend. Too much humility in this case might let in such an alien flood as to in time displace us as we displaced the American Indian.

As for a "spirit of domination," most of us will fail to see the connection. How many of us want to dominate any other persons or race or country? In general we are glad to let others alone, if only they will let us alone. Congressional discourtesy to the Japs is the only charge that can be lodged against us.

DEADLY WAR.

Several inventors claim they have discovered a "death ray" which, swung like a searchlight, would start fires, explode ammunition and kill enemy soldiers miles away. It's not a new claim. You recall the X-ray, so widely discussed before the World War.

It is frequently suggested that science may make war so deadly and destructive that no nation would dare start fighting. War would become mutual suicide. It's not impossible. But, first, nations would have to agree to have no secrets in their war offices, otherwise there'd be individual advantages.

War, like other evils, is perpetuated by secrecy.

An electric machine that lays as many bricks as 20 masons is being marketed in the building trades. Three men operate it. The labor of 17 men is saved, released for other kinds of work.

This is typical of the history of applied inventions.

You picture a future race with nothing to do, except run machines, make them, mine and prepare ores and grow food. These tasks can be made easier by machinery, but never displaced by it. ## ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 3—A TRIP TO HOLLAND

Away they went over tree tops and fields

"Where are your tickets?" asked the timoness as Nancy and Nick and Johnny Jump Up, the garden fairy, hopped on his back.

"Here they are," said Nick, reaching into his pocket.

The timoness put on his specks and looked at them by the light of the moon. Each ticket said "One round trip to Holland! There and back!"

He punched a hole in each one with his sharp little beak and stuffed them into his pocket.

"All aboard! Ding, ding!" he cried, and flew off in a hurry.

Away they went over tree tops and fields and hills and houses until they came to the sea.

Then they flew over the sea toward the sun-rise and then they came to Holland.

The timoness lighted on a red roof with a big chimney. "It's daylight here but it's night at home," he explained. "Now have a good time, all of you. I'll be back at half past ten to take you back to the magic garden. Be here promptly and please don't keep me waiting."

"We won't," promised the travelers.

Away flew the timoness.

"How'd' do," said a new voice.

And there stood a tall stork beside a great nest, right on the roof beside them.

"How'd' do!" said Nancy and Nick and Johnny Jump Up.

"Pretty well," said the stork. "Did you come from Africa, too?"

"No," answered the little garden fairy. "We came from the magic garden, though, and that's just as good. The tulips there are wonderful!"

"Pooh!" said the stork sharply out of his sharp bill. "Just look over the edge of the roof there and you'll see what tulips really are."

So all three of them ran and looked. "That's nothing!" called back Johnny Jump Up. "We have that many at home."

For he wouldn't let on that they were any finer.

"Say," said the stork. "Some folk are hard to convince. If you jump on my nose, I'll take you around and show you a thing or two."

But no sooner were they all seated on Mr. Stork's long bill, than he went "achoo! achoo! achoo!"

And away shot the three little people.

TENTATIVE DRAFT OF PLATFORM NOW READY FOR G. O. P.

Presentation to Big Convention Tomorrow is Expectation Now.

Cleveland, O., June 10.—A tentative draft of the 1924 platform of the republican party had been completed today after a group of members of the resolutions committee had labored into the early morning hours, and had obtained the views of President Coolidge by telephone on certain planks.

Chairman Charles B. Warren of the committee explained this draft would form the basis on which the committee would work. The platform will be ready for action by the convention Wednesday afternoon. The platform builders made some changes last night in the suggested planks brought here by Secretary Slemph with President Coolidge's sanction. The foreign relations provision was materially revised.

Among those who participated in the discussion were Senators Smoot of Utah, and Gooding of Idaho and Representatives Vane of Pennsylvania and Mills of New York.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania was consulted as was John Thomas, newly elected national committeeman from Idaho.

Expect Few Changes
At the conclusion of the hearings today, the resolutions committee will begin whipping the platform into final shape. Since the tentative draft covers practically all of the questions to be discussed at the hearings, no material alterations of the planks already worked out were forecast.

While the platform basis was in process of construction, republican insurgents through the Wisconsin delegation, made public resolutions to be presented to the convention, condemning the official acts of H. M. Daugherty, former attorney general, and Albert B. Fall, former interior secretary.

Discussing this phase of the platform of the organization, those shaping the proposed expression of the convention said there would be a clear cut declaration condemning "bad behavior" in public office.

Broad Tax Reforms
With reference to tax reduction, the platform, it was stated authoritatively, will make no specific reference to the Mellon plan, but will contain a broad declaration for tax revision and reforms.

The world court plank was described as a straightforward declaration of American adherence to the court of international justice without specific recommendations as to the form of adherence.

The soldiers' bonus has been treated by the platform builders as an accomplished fact and the only reference, if any, will be a declaration for execution of the law placed on the statute books over President Coolidge's veto.

There will be a provision, however, as to the treatment of the sick and disabled veterans of the World War.

Punish Wrong-Doers
Another of the suggested planks which was rewritten was that dealing in wrong doing in public office. As now drawn, this provision makes no mention of individuals, but declares for punishment where guilt is clearly established.

The national defense plank would declare for the military training for all citizens who wish to be trained and deals specifically with the civilian military training camps and the officers reserve corps. For the navy it would declare for the building up and maintenance of a sea force up to the full strength permitted the United States under the Washington treaty.

CARD OF THANKS.
TEN CENTS PER LINE FOR
Evidently there are some who do not understand that Card of Thanks run in a newspaper is purely a personal matter and not news, and consequently something for which a charge is made in all papers. Seventy-five cents is the minimum price in the Telegraph, so if those wishing a card run would send the money with copy it would save all further annoyance.

DIXON EVENING TELEGRAPH.

BISHOPS FAVOR DANCE.

Springfield.—One result of the recent convention of the Board of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church here was a recommendation that the church ban on dancing, card playing, theatre-going and circus-going be lifted.

MONDELL REPEATS RALLYING CRY TO REPUBLICAN CLAN

ard of party leadership and who shall be entitled to and, we confidently believe, will receive the support of a large majority of the American voters at the polls in November.

We meet profoundly appreciative of wise, patriotic and inspiring party leadership in the past, and earnestly thankful that the kindly providence and the great good fortune which gave our party and the nation Lincoln, McKinley, Roosevelt and Harding has vouchsafed us as the worthy successor of these distinguished patriots the confidence-inspiring character of Calvin Coolidge.

Approval Justified
The American people placed the stamp of their approval on the candidates of the last republican national convention by a majority of more than five and a half million. Time and events have abundantly justified that unparalleled endorsement. He, who was chosen as the party standard bearer proved his statesmanship in the skillful handling and wise adjustment of important and weighty domestic and international questions and problems. Diligent in the nation's business, wise in public counsel, honest and courageous in action, he gave himself unreservedly, mind and body, heart and soul, to the nation, and became as truly a martyr to patriotic service as any soldier stricken on the field of battle.

Harding's Name High
How well he fitted and became the great office to which he was chosen! History will write his name high on the roll of able and efficient executives, but we who knew and loved him best will cherish most the recollection of his great and kindly heart, his tender and sympathetic soul. The nation mourned him as one mourns a brother beloved and enshrined him in the only enduring hall of fame—the loyal hearts of a grateful people.

Confidence was the keynote of the sentiment which inspired the nomination of Calvin Coolidge at Chicago four years ago. That confidence grew as he modestly performed the duties of the position to which he was elected, and strengthened prodigiously as he met many difficult and trying problems presented to him in the presidential office.

Confidence in Coolidge
Confidence in President Coolidge is the most important and outstanding factor in the political situation today, and, in the presence of inevitable difficulty cannot, in the nature of things, produce legislative results beneficial or satisfactory to the people of the country. The inevitable effect of such legislative control is confusion and paralysis and a legislative product satisfactory to no one.

Every serious fault of recent legislation and every failure to complete and round out a satisfactory legislative program could and would have been avoided had there been dependable republican majorities in the congress. The one certain and assured remedy for such a condition is the election of a congress, Republican, by a goodly majority, both in name and in principle.

This is the open season for weird claim and wild assertion on the part of our friends, the political enemy. Only recently emerged from beneath the political landslide of four years ago they attempted to appear as confident as they were just before being engulfed in that overwhelming catastrophe.

Need of Majority Shown
Never before in our history has the need and the necessity of dependable party majorities and of definite party responsibility been so clearly demonstrated as in the very recent past.

Legislative control by shifting and changing combinations, resulting in majorities having no common faith and recognizing no united responsibility cannot, in the nature of things, produce legislative results beneficial or satisfactory to the people of the country. The inevitable effect of such legislative control is confusion and paralysis and a legislative product satisfactory to no one.

Every serious fault of recent legislation and every failure to complete and round out a satisfactory legislative program could and would have been avoided had there been dependable republican majorities in the congress. The one certain and assured remedy for such a condition is the election of a congress, Republican, by a goodly majority, both in name and in principle.

This is the open season for weird claim and wild assertion on the part of our friends, the political enemy. Only recently emerged from beneath the political landslide of four years ago they attempted to appear as confident as they were just before being engulfed in that overwhelming catastrophe.

In the moments they can spare from their fierce family feuds and rivalries they make a pretense of assuming to believe that they have successfully laid down a smoke screen through which their transparent parties purposes shall not be discovered, and in the contemplation of which all of their sins of omission and commission, of discredited policies and of discredited administration shall be overlooked and forgotten.

If the American people were prepared to forget—as the democrats themselves endeavor to do—the wholly indefensible record of the democratic party in earlier days, they certainly could not overlook the fact that the most recent record of that party is one devoid of a single redeeming feature; of scandalous mismanagement, of unwise and indefensible policy when in control and utter lack of fixed and definite principle or policy, save that of muck-raking and obstruction, when in minority.

As we proceed to the nomination of our candidates and the drafting of our platform we may find inspiration in the fact that ours is the only national party in America that can and does point with pride to each and every candidate nominated at its conventions and to every declaration made in any of its national platforms. All human experience justifies faith and confidence in an organization with such a history. The record of wise leadership, sound policy, and faithful public service in the past affords the best possible guaranty of the future.

A tree is known by its fruits; not by the showy flowers of promise or the occasional defect in bud or branch, but by the normal harvest through the running of the years—and the harvest of the Republican party and leadership is faithfully reflected in the matchless growth and fadeless glory of the Republic.

The Price of Good Will.

We get, in a measure, as we give, although the giving must be in advance. The clerk must earn more than $10 before he can expect to be advanced to $12. So his employer must win the good will of the town by long, hard effort, before it is bestowed, and good will is too valuable an asset to be earned cheaply.

Many a man has felt that his loyalty to his town has hardly been appreciated just because he had to earn appreciation in advance of its being given to him. He has subscribed to the new industry only to see the benefits of its output go to some successful rival. He has made liberal church donations and seen the leaders of the churches trade with his more aristocratic neighbor. He has championed reforms that have been turned against his own interests. He has voted for improvements that were not in his line and only added to his taxes. He has encouraged local industries with his patronage only to be underbid by some out-of-town contractor for the next bit of public work. He has tried to speak with due enthusiasm on the attractions of the place when those that are the freshest in his mind are his receipts for rent and taxes. But some day, when his fire won't burn and the apples are sour, let him think it over carefully; how much, after all, he has received for what he has given.

The new industry has added much to the purchasing power of the town and of its customers. No one can doubt that the church influence has diverted more of the town's wealth into legitimate trade circles, into houses and homes, than would otherwise have gone there. Perhaps the advertising may seem meager in direct results; is it not something to arouse by means of the paper more of a local interest in the place; a local trade announcements for the perusal of the local public? Even the unsuccessful bid may bring his existence to the attention of possible customers of whom he never heard.

A great deal of this good will acquisition must ever be of the vapory, uncertain value that can not be measured in pounds and ounces, or paid for by the yard. Part of its return consists in the pleasure of the giving; yet withal, it is a good investment from the business standpoint, one that can not be won by gifts of dollars and cents alone but requires hard, patient effort. A good deal of the gaudy appreciation that seems so glittering in the distance is only a tinsel imitation that is purchasable and is very different from the solid article that only comes through the universal confidence and respect won by honest effort, kindly attention and unflinching loyalty.

LETTER FROM SALLY ATHERTON TO BEATRICE GRIMSHAW, CONTINUED

My employer's mother is staying with him while Leslie is away. She is one of those awfully good women who have utterly inflexible rules of conduct, and she never by any possibility thinks that her son, "who is a descendant of the John Aldens, you know," could really do anything wrong. She must be kind of a nuisance to poor Leslie.

Just at present her time is taken up with talking about and hunting for a secret drawer in a lovely old desk that she herself gave Leslie for a wedding present. Wouldn't it be a scream if she would find this drawer before Leslie returns, and also find something in it that Leslie herself has put there? For if there is a secret drawer I'm sure that Leslie knows about it. You know how mad she is about old furniture, and you can make up your mind that she has gone over that old desk inch by inch.

You tell me you never met Ruth Ellington, who seems to be Leslie's dearest friend. She's a very clever woman, my dear, and naturally I don't like her. I see you are smiling, Bee, but that remark that I have just written does not in any way intimate that you're not clever. However, Ruth Ellington is singularly devoted to Leslie, and I think she's keeping quite as much tabs on me as Sydney Carton is on Mr. Prescott. Just why, I do not know, for up to date nothing could be more innocuous than my relations with my employer.

I expect you will be horrified when you know that although I had never been to Leslie's home when she was there to dine, I have been twice to dinner since she has been away. Do you know, Bee, I felt sorry for Mr. Prescott. He was tired and somewhat irritable, and I knew he just dreaded to go home to that old woman, even if she was his mother. So I took pity on him. In fact, I have taken pity on him many other evenings since Leslie has been gone, and dined with him. Perhaps it wasn't just right, but he is lonely, and so am I. He interests me and I think I amuse him.

There, I know, Bee, that just now is one of the times when you do not approve of me. But why shouldn't I have a little entertainment? Surely Mr. Jack Prescott is not just a baby, and I am so tired of being called upon not only to regulate my own morals but the morals of the men with whom I associate.

And now, just at the end of my letter I am going to tell you something that will perhaps surprise you. I think I am being a little malicious because I am a little jealous of Leslie—not particularly of her husband, but of her everyday life, her beautiful home, her lovely baby—yes, and that charming, of narrow-minded, old woman for a mother-in-law, and her friend, Ruth Ellington, who loves her devotedly. Even you, Ruth, the dearest friend I have ever had, have never cared for me as Ruth Ellington does for Leslie. I am afraid I shall never call out such love from anyone, man or woman. Perhaps it is because I do not deserve it; but, Bee, I am as I am, and if you care for me at all, you must care for me as

Man and Girl Found Slain Near Alton, Ill.

By Associated Press Local Wire
Edwardsville, Ill., June 11.—The bodies of a man and a girl were found in a ditch along the Edwardsville-Alton road west of Edwardsville this morning by a party of fishermen on their way to the Cahokia Creek. Indications were that the couple were slain elsewhere and taken to the creek bank, authorities said. The man was partly identified as Pete Aiello, a barber of Alton, while the girl was said to be Miss Dorothy Morgan, also of Alton, who formerly lived in Vandalia, Illinois. Her throat had been cut from ear to ear, while Aiello had been shot in the left temple.

Madison County authorities were inclined to believe that the dual killing was the outcome of a vendetta.

CONSTANTLY IMPROVED BUT NO YEARLY MODELS

Dodge Brothers Motor Car retains its basic design year after year.

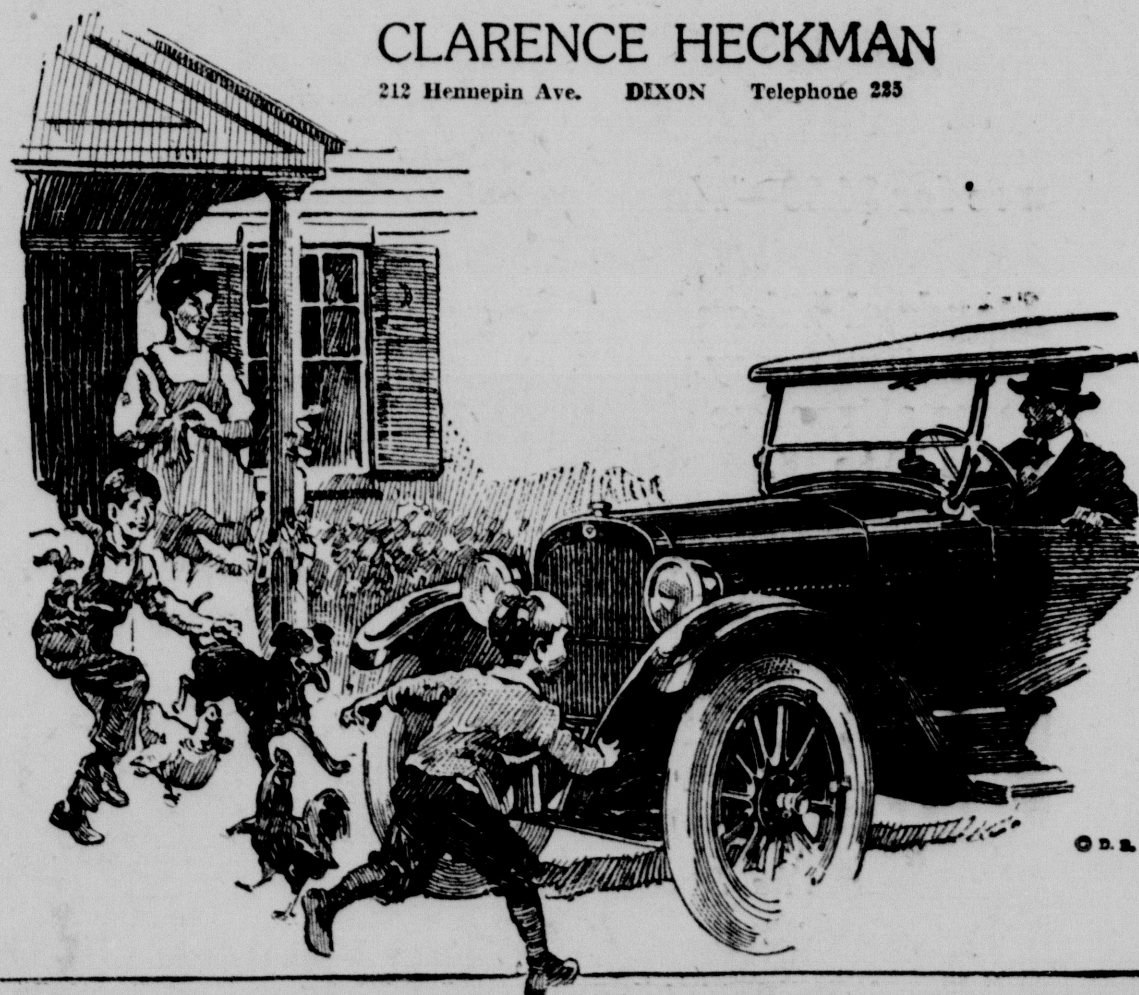

Improvements are made constantly, but there are no radical, annual changes.

This policy protects owners from the rapid depreciation-loss which invariably attends the periodic announcement of new types.

It also enables Dodge Brothers to effect an appreciable saving in manufacture; and this saving is faithfully returned to the buyer in the form of surplus value.

The LAND OF FORGOTTEN MEN

by Edison Marshall

Released by NEA Service Inc. Copyright 1923 by Little, Brown &amp; Co.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Peter Newhall, Augusta, Ga. fees to Alaska, after being told by Ivan Ishmin, Russian violinist, he had drowned. Paul Serleche, Ishmin's secretary, Ishmin and Peter's wife, Dorothy, had urged him to flee to South America. He joins Big Chris Larson in response to a distress signal at sea, giving Larson his sea jacket. Their launch hits rocks. Dorothy recognizes word that her husband's body, identified by his sea jacket, is buried in Alaska. But Peter has been rescued by another ship. Injuries completely change his appearance, hiding his identity. Larson's body occupies the grave. Ishmin and Dorothy go to Alaska to return Peter's body to Georgia. They do not know that Peter, who is chosen head guide. A storm carries their ship to sea, stranding them in the ice. Peter and Dorothy are hunted. He carries her across a stream.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

It was only an incident of the trail, and it disturbed her that, as she walked on toward camp, she could not get it out of her mind. It did not please her that she could be moved, even vaguely and faintly, by this crude, rough man of the barrens. Yet, somehow, she had been caused to think of the lover of her girlhood. Memories, tender and dear, had been quickened to life.

To Peter the moment had been of nothing less than glory. He, too, knew it was only an adventure of the trail, that it was but the image of a hopeless dream that must never—could never—come true; yet for an instant it had lifted him, as with wings, out of the valley of the shadow.

CHAPTER X

Pete Saves Ishmin

DOROTHY found, to her great surprise, that the days of waiting passed rather swiftly. She slept long in the mornings on the comfortable, rudely contrived grass mattress that Pete had made for her; she played cards with Ivan, and made many little adventurous excursions into the wild with one or both of the two white men. Ivan was consideration itself, always willing to beguile her with his marvelous music, wooing her with his fineness of ardor, fascinating her in hours of talk with the intricacies of his brilliant intellect and of his complex, marvelously attractive personality.

Yet she owed a great deal to the head guide, too. In particular he watched out for her material comfort, superintending the preparation of her meals so that every cup of coffee, every succulent breast of game was exactly to her taste, keeping her ever warm and dry, refilling her mattress every day with freshly cut grass and keeping the fire bright every morning in the camp stove for her to dress by.

It was not so easy to explain the instinctive comradeship she felt for him. Of course he was the one man of her own race in the entire company, and here—far from the cities of men—bonds of race were revealed as of surprising strength.

From Pete's point of view the days went by in a single flash between the curtains of night; and he dreamed to his heart's depth the hour certain to come when the Warrior would roll in on the waves and carry Dorothy out of his life.

His attitude toward Ivan was too complex ever to be completely straightened out in his mind. In the first place he had deep admiration and unfaltering respect for this gentle, from the East. He was pleased and gratified by the man's attitude toward Dorothy; his own most chivalrous instincts seemed reflected in the Russian. Yet sometimes a sudden, white flame, strange to his night and puzzling to his heart, mounted and paled in the thin, almost beautiful face, sometimes he was appalled and estranged by a spark in the almond eyes, a gesture of the white hands, and sometimes he caught a fleeting expression on the classic countenance that awakened, in his own heart, a sullen, almost a murderous rage. Once, on bringing fresh fuel to the little camp stove in Dorothy's tent, he found the girl in the Russian's arms.

She had just yielded to his lips, and she was convinced—at the instant that Pete appeared at the threshold—that in Ivan her destiny of happiness was secure. But she was instantly cold, inexplicably appalled, as she looked into Pete's face.

She could not have explained why. The man looked drawn, as in the last stages of fatigue; but there was no conceivable excuse for her sense of shame, her strange drawing in to herself and inability to emerge again into Ivan's warmth.

On leaving the tent Pete walked straight past the camp fire on to the hills. He was profoundly shaken and unnerved, not from amazement at what he had seen—he had realized that Ivan and Dorothy were virtually engaged—but at the narrow margin by which the girl had missed irrevocable disaster. It had not been by too wide a margin that he had restrained a mad, tragic impulse to leap into the tent and shatter the man's life.

He spent a restless night after the incident, and his peace of mind had departed from him. For all that this was his last dream on earth—the only shadow of happiness that he dared to hope for—he felt that by all conscience he must cut it short. His trust in himself was shattered, and there was nothing for him now but to turn away from this camp where his love was and vanish among the desolate hills. His star would soon set, the tower of his only strength was tottering. Yet the hours passed, and he lay in his bunk, unable to reach up to this sacrifice of self. But if he had lost faith in himself, a higher, better faith had come to him in these years in the wild, and the basic prayer, the first and last cry of all mankind, came easily to his lips: "Oh, Lord, lead me not into temptation, and deliver me from evil!"

Yet it was a higher wisdom that temptation should come to him, in an unexpected form, before the day that he saw break over the eastern hills sloped down again to darkness. The party of five had made serious inroads in the small caribou he had brought to camp, and partly with the idea of procuring fresh meat, and partly because he wanted to be alone with his bitter thoughts, Pete announced his intention of penetrating the interior on a hunting expedition. Dorothy was lame from a stiff climb of the evening previous, so she declined his invitation to go. Ivan, however, joined up from his book with heightened interest.

Loyalty to Law is Nation's Big Need, President Declares

Washington, June 10.—Loyalty based on a reverence for constitutional authority was urged by President Coolidge as the need of the country from its educated men and women.

Speaking at the annual commencement exercises at Georgetown University here, the President said there must be "loyalty to the family, loyalty to the various civic organizations of society; loyalty to the government, which means first of all the observance of its laws, and loyalty to religion."

Mr. Coolidge expressed the belief that the college graduates of this year "will find the world ready to give them a warm welcome, a larger share in its tasks than ever before."

He warned, however, that a reception "a bit cold" awaits those who insist on "tail and staff collars

MAJOR HOOPLE ATTENDS THE CONVENTION

By MAJOR HOOPLE

Cleveland, June 11.—Egad, I am enraged to a high pitch today. I left the hotel this morning after having hot words with a strong-headed house detective. It came about because I fell asleep in a barber shop and did not become fully aroused until day-break.

The whole day has been one upset after another for me. First of all I had lost the check for my satchel, which I had left at the Statler Hotel. In it I had all the necessary articles for grooming one's person, a box of perfectos and a quart of, er, ah—well, as I was saying, I felt in bad need of a shave and massage.

While strolling about in the bracing morning air, I chanced to come upon a school for student barbers. I have always made it a point to encourage young lads seeking knowledge in any honest endeavor or profession. The young tonsorialist whose honor it was to shave me, did a fairly good job and I rewarded him handsomely. I feel a five-cent piece given for satisfaction will compound itself the next time in service.

My only good fortune of the day came while breakfasting in a cafeteria. I struck up conversation with a gentleman at my table, who spent the summer before touring the orient. It is needless to say that we had much in common to talk about, and it seemed to impress him greatly when I told him that I was consul to Tsin Tai, China, for eight years. Nothing would do but what he should have-the pleasure also of paying my breakfast check as his guest, much to my chagrin, Alhem.

The remainder of the morning I spent in visiting the large stores, and did not in a full hour listening to phonograph records at a music shoppe. I intended to purchase an old-time sentimental ballad for the good wife, but feared lest it should break during the hurry and bustle of the day.

By Jove, a jeweler's clock brought to mind that I would be late for the convention hall, and with a stride befitting an Olympic athlete, I made for the Auditorium. Never before was I raised to such a degree of temper, as I displayed in trying to gain entrance to the forum.

On my coat lapel hung the badge which I have worn to every convention since '96. The guardian of the law at the door impeded my effort to enter with an obstinate hand. No persuasion on my part could alter his determination that I should remain outside.

Egad, so furious was I that he threatened to call the patrol wagon. I waxed tempestuously when he sarcastically apologized for the antique quarters at the county jail, because he felt that I had spent time in more modern jails throughout the country.

Mind you, I did not hesitate to jot down his station number, and when I call on the chief of police this evening, the officer will be in a wretched state of humility tomorrow, by Jove!

SEEKS FUNDS TO CARRY MOTHERS TO WAR GRAVES

McKenzie Asks Govt. to Pay Their Expenses to French Graves.

"Gold Star" mothers, whose sons lie buried in France, who have not the means to make the long pilgrimage to the graves of their loved ones may go at government expense if a bill reported favorably by Representative John C. McKenzie of this congressional district, acting chairman of the house military affairs committee, is passed at the next session of congress.

The records of the war department show that approximately 12,500 entrusted the bodies of their sons to the country's care and asked that they be allowed to remain in American cemeteries abroad.

"By permitting the bodies to remain in the permanent American military cemeteries in Europe these mothers relieved the government of the expense of returning them to their homes for burial," says the McKenzie report, urging that the expense of taking all mothers who desire to go on the pilgrimage of sadness would be less than half that of bringing the remains of their loved ones back home.

The report estimates that "gold star" mothers could be taken to France and return for an average of $433.25, which would involve a total cost to the United States government of $5,300,000. Transports would be used in making the ocean journey and satisfactory accommodations would be provided for the visitors while abroad.

The average age of America's gold star mothers, says the report, is now 64 1/2 years. At least six months would be required in preliminary arrangements for the trip, and duration of the French rainy season has caused the officials to specify the season between May and October as the one most feasible for the trip.

Many of the 770 American graves on the Somme battlefield are those of Illinois boys, as the 33rd division first saw action on that front. Other Illinois heroes still rest on the Meuse, Argonne, St. Mihiel and Aisne-Marne fields.

Representative McKenzie, who is spending his last term in congress, is determined to bring the bill up and push it to passage at the opening of the winter session of congress, which would permit the government to make provisions for the transportation of the "gold star" mothers to France by May 1, 1925, so that the first shipload could sail on that date.

No exact figures are obtainable on the number of mothers from Illinois who would be eligible to make the trip abroad to visit their sons' graves, but it is believed to be in the neighborhood of 750, based on the total percentage of Illinoisans in service.

Homes under construction are being wired for radio.

WILL M. CRESSY at the REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

The convention delegates are getting down to practical politics now—the keynote speech, a row over the platform, all that. Will Cressy tells about it in the fifth installment of his series on the big Republican gathering in Cleveland.

BY WILL M. CRESSY
Illustrated by George Storm

Well, we are gaining all the time. Mr. Butler of Massachusetts is the new chairman of the national Republican committee.

Mr. Butler ought to be all right. The Butlers of Massachusetts have always been good men. There was Benjamin F. Ben was the only Presidential candidate who ever got less votes than William Taft. William carried two states, which was two more than Ben carried. Then Ben was a general during the Civil War. He captured New Orleans. Then he got pinched for spoiling. And died declaring with his last breath that he did NOT look like William Jennings Bryan and that Ben Turpin was NOT his grandson.

The resolutions committee has tried hard to tinker up a platform that would not stampede the La Follette Demo-republicans. From where I sit in the convention hall this appeared to be a tough job. But then I have got a back seat.

LEE CO. FARM BUREAU NOTES

HOG CHOLERA ON LEE FARMS
At least two cases of the hog cholera have been called to the attention of the Farm Bureau within the past week in Lee county. Other reports from the vicinity of Paw Paw claim cholera to be present although this report is not yet verified.

In both instances where the reports were found to be true as to the presence of cholera the herds were immediately vaccinated with hog cholera serum and virus. In one instance 20 to 30 pigs had died, presumably of cholera.

The two affected herds are in South Dixon and Ashton townships and the and this will be furnished to members of the Farm Bureau at 70c per hundred. Demonstrations are also given in the administering of the serum.

Last year more than 100 farmers in Lee county secured serum and virus through the Farm Bureau, using a total of 362,000 cubic centimeters. It is expected that at least 500,000 c. c. will be used during the year 1924. Cost of vaccinating spring pigs is very reasonable at the above price of serum and amounts usually to 20c to 30c per head for pigs weighing 40 pounds or less.

REPRESENTS A. F. B. F.

Sam H. Thompson, president of the Illinois Agricultural Association, has been called to Cleveland to attend the national republican convention, in the interests of the American Farm Bureau Federation, according to information received by Farm Adviser L. S. Griffith of Lee county. Upon the request of J. E. Reid, acting president of the A. F. B. F. in the absence of President O. E. Bradfute who is in Rome representing the United States at the International Institute of Agriculture, President Thompson, accompanied by E. B. Reid, assistant Washington representative of the A. F. B. F. is representing the interests of the American farmers in the national republican platform manipulations.

The duties of President Thompson and Mr. Reid are to see that agriculture is not overlooked in the formation of the national republican platform and that the agricultural planks in that platform are in harmony with the wishes of the American farmer, says Farm Adviser Griffith.

President Thompson is a member of the executive committee of the A. F. B. F. The ability shown by Mr. Thompson in handling legislative problems in Illinois and his knowledge of the real needs of the farmers make him a valuable representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Representatives to attend the democratic national convention in New York have not been chosen, according to A. F. B. F. officials.

FOR McNARY-HAUGEN BILL

Lee county farmers will be interested to know how their congressional representatives voted on the McNary-Haugen bill when it was defeated in congress last week. According to Illinois Agricultural Association officials it is especially gratifying to note the allegiance shown by most of the Congressional representatives on this farm relief measure which would have meant so much to farmers. It will be noted that most of the Illinois opposition came from the districts numbering from 1 to 10, which contains Chicago and the city support. Representative Rainey of the 20th district is the only representative of a predominantly agricultural district who voted against the farmers' measure.

farmers in these territories, especially are urged to watch carefully for further outbreaks. Starting this early in the season it would indicate that there may be considerable loss again this year.

The Lee County Farm Bureau maintains a supply of serum and virus.
